We hope you enjoy exploring the rich history, legends, and notable figures that have shaped Callaway County into a fascinating story more than 200 years in the making.

- 1815 The first European settlers arrived in the area. Most arrived from Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.
- 1851 Missouri School for the Deaf was founded and the Missouri State Hospital opened. Fulton College for men was established; the name was changed to Westminster College in 1853.
- 1870 School to educate girls orphaned by the war was founded north of Kansas City. After moving to Fulton in the late 19th-century, it was renamed William Woods College.
- 1990 Former president Ronald Reagan visits Fulton to dedicate the Berlin Wall sculpture "Breakthrough" by Edwina Sandys, granddaughter of Sir Winston Churchill. Mikhail Gorbachev visited in 1992, followed by Margaret Thatcher in 1996.

- Historically, the area was inhabited primarily by the Osage.
- 1820 The area was organized into Callaway County, named for Captain James Callaway—a grandson of Daniel Boone.
- 1861 The Civil War begins. Missouri was a border state, with mixed loyalties. There was a perception that the Union militia treated our area as an entity apart from the rest of the state. That's how it became known as "The Kingdom of Callaway."
- 1946 Winston Churchill is invited by President Harry S Truman to visit his home state, where he delivered his famous "Iron Curtain" speech at Westminster College. In 1969, America's National Churchill Museum opens in a 17th-century church relocated from London.
- 2001 A statue commissioned for the Fire Fighters Memorial in Kingdom City was sitting in customs in New York City on September 11th. It was donated by the Fire Fighters Association of Missouri to the New York City Fire Department to honor those killed on 9/11. In 2002, a duplicate statue was installed at the memorial.
